The Ultimate Opportunities

Change affects everyone (customers, suppliers, partners, etc.). How you choose to embrace this change can be the difference between success and failure. Leveraging significant shifts within the marketplace is crucial to grow your business. Typical approaches to major disruptive change in the marketplace have been to ‘run for the hills’, freeze expansion, freeze expenses, reduce staffing and other cut backs. We will discuss how to take these cyclical downturns and turn them into strategic opportunities for explosive growth. Content will include simple formulas and strategies to navigate through these ‘game changing’ events, as well as setting the stage for unparalleled success during times of constraint and turmoil.

Mr. Lapidot is a Business Development & Marketing Executive with more than fifteen years of domestic and international experience identifying and developing new markets and strategic alliances, markedly increasing productivity and positioning companies for dramatic market share and profit enlargement. He has served on the Board of Directors of several companies and held the position of Executive Vice President – Strategic Alliances. He also held the position of Global Managing Director at Assurant Group, a Fortune 500 company, with responsibility for their market expansion into European and Latin American Markets. He has an outstanding record of success in delivering dramatic revenue growth and improved cost performance through strategic and operational insight with creative and tactical execution.

Michael Miazga, Group Director, Planning, Tribune

Turning Around Tribune: Thriving in Bankruptcy & Beyond

Tribune Publishing, a $2 billion media company responsible for managing the Los Angeles Times, Chicago Tribune and six other daily newspapers, was forced to redefine itself amidst a three-year Chapter 11 bankruptcy and treacherous decline of print advertising revenues. This story chronicles the definition and implementation of over $100 million in strategic initiatives and cost reduction efforts, including growing digital revenue and expanding B2B (business-to-business) media services to turn around the Publishing division.

Mike Miazga is the Group Director of Planning at Tribune, where he leads and oversees a number of different strategic initiatives for the Publishing division, which is responsible for $2 billion in annual revenue and management of eight daily newspapers including the Chicago Tribune and Los Angeles Times. Mike has 14 years of diversified strategy, process improvement and consulting experience across industries. Before Tribune, he worked at Ernst & Young, Capgemini and Northwestern Memorial Hospital. Mike received his BS in Electrical Engineering from the University of Notre Dame and his MBA from the Kellogg School of Management.

Jessica Saperstein, Division VP, Strategy, ADP

Tapping into the Strategic Growth Potential from the Mid-Market

Within the business-to-business sector, many companies are focused on capturing demand from either large enterprises or small businesses. However, the middle market segment often gets overlooked despite its significant scale and stability. Harnessing the potential of the middle market can drive significant opportunities for companies if they are aligned with the diverse and unique needs of this segment. We will discuss recent research results about what is on the mind of mid-market sized companies from a strategy perspective and case studies on how to drive growth based on these insights.

Jessica Saperstein leads strategic planning, business development and growth initiatives for APD’s Major Accounts business serving mid-size clients. Jessica joined ADP as VP of Corporate Strategy. In this role, she was instrumental in driving ADP’s Corporate Strategic Agenda and leading ADP’s market entry into new adjacencies and vertical business segments. Jessica is a seasoned strategist, with over 20 years of strategy development and innovation experience as a management consultant and on the client side. She received her MBA from Columbia Business School and completed undergraduate degrees in Business and Communications at the University of Pennsylvania.
