FREE EXPRESSION PROGRAMS ~ PEN America's Free Expression Programs defend writers and journalists and protect free expression rights in the United States and around the world. This work includes research and reports on topical issues ranging from fraudulent news to censorship in China; advocacy internationally and in the United States in defense of press freedom and on other free expression challenges; and campaigns on policy issues and on behalf of individual writers and journalists under threat. Recent special initiatives include:

1.1. Colleges

Defend free speech on college campuses

Campus Free Speech: Through original research, campus convenings, and public programs, PEN America has taken the lead on a nuanced defense of free speech on college campuses that focuses on raising awareness of the First Amendment, engaging with a diversity of campus stakeholders, and fostering constructive dialogue across difference that upholds the free speech rights of all.

Stakeholder(s):

2. Literary Programs

LITERARY PROGRAMS

2.1. Festival

Conduct an annual series of events with a human rights focus

The PEN World Voices Festival, a week-long series of events in New York City each spring, is the largest international literary festival in the United States, and the only one with a human rights focus. The Festival was founded by Salman Rushdie in the aftermath of September 11, 2001, with the aim of broadening channels of dialogue between the United States and the world—a mission that continues to have great relevance today.

2.2. Awards

Honor outstanding voices in literature

The PEN America Literary Awards annually honor outstanding voices in literature across diverse genres, including fiction, poetry, drama, science and sports writing, essays, biography, and children’s literature. PEN America confers more than 20 awards, fellowships, grants, and prizes each year, presenting nearly $350,000 to writers and translators.

2.3. Celebrations

Celebrate free expression and the literary arts

The PEN America Literary Gala in New York and LitFest in Los Angeles are celebrations of free expression and the literary arts. Each year, these events offer impassioned tributes, important calls to action, and moments of levity to audiences of authors, screenwriters, producers, executives, philanthropists, actors, and other devotees of the written word who share a commitment to the robust defense of freedom of expression in the United States and around the world. Recent honorees have included Stephen King, J. K. Rowling, and the student activists against gun violence. Celebrated writers serve as Literary Hosts for the events.

2.4. Public Programming

Offer a range of public programs

Public Programming: Throughout the year, PEN America offers a range of public programs in New York, Los Angeles, and across the country on topics at the intersection of literature and free expression. These programs offer opportunities for audience members to engage with some of today’s most exciting literary voices and free expression advocates, with a focus on amplifying emerging and marginalized voices.

2.5. Voices

Amplify lesser heard voices

PEN America is committed to amplifying lesser heard voices through initiatives such as the Prison Writing Program, which provides incarcerated writers with mentorship, awards, and connections to new audiences on the outside; DREAMing Out Loud for young aspiring writers who struggle with the realities of their undocumented status and with other obstacles; the Emerging Voices Fellowship that provides new writers isolated from the literary establishment with the tools, skills, and knowledge they need to launch a professional writing career; and Worker Writers Workshops that cultivate the writing skills of domestic workers, taxi drivers, street vendors, and others.
